
May 2007

Walking the London Blitz

Our guide for the day, Clive Harris started his talk at Hyde Park Corner. The walk to Whitehall took us past many buildings and statues still bearing the scars of the bombing raids.

We also discovered many memorials to the Great War, two of which are at the entrance to the Royal Academy. Opposite is Fortnum and Mason who managed to deliver a food hamper to Raymond Asquith of the Grenadier Guards on the front line on the Somme in 1916.

There was a story waiting for us around every corner

To complete our visit, this parade passed by which seemed a fitting end to a very enjoyable day.
